Conference center project meets its end

By Mike Nelson
Staff Writer

Carbondale's $15 million downtown conference center and hotel project is fast becoming a fading memory.

The death knell sounded for the project Dec. 10, when City Manager Carroll Fry announced that special attorney John Womick had failed to secure land options from eight property owners holding land needed for the site.

The project was dealt what proved to be the fatal blow when officials of the Walnut Street Baptist Church — which held the largest parcel of land needed — said that the church's constitution prevented it from considering the city's $900,000 offer until after the Dec. 10 deadline imposed by developer Stan Hoyer.

In a letter to Carbondale attorney Jim Morris, Womick said he was surprised to learn of the church's constitutional requirement that a seven day notice be given before acting on any business matter. Womick said he had been advised by another attorney that the church could respond to an offer within 48 hours.

The City Council will decide Monday whether to authorize Fry to proceed with the phasing out of the long-planned project. Fry has said the city expects to lose at least $640,000, which includes money spent for land acquisition and a $140,000 interest penalty which will be paid to cover Hoyer's losses when $10.5 million in construction bonds are called in.

Although the center and hotel are nixed, Mayor Hans Fischer says the city still plans to build the parking garage. Fischer said financial arrangements for the garage are not tied to the $2.017 million Urban Development Action Grant obtained for the conference center — therefore, the garage does not face the same Dec. 31, 1984 construction deadline.

Progress was halted on the project last June when Circuit Judge Richard E. Richman ruled that a "quick-take" ordinance — which the city had been using to seize land for the center site — was unconstitutional. The city's appeal of that decision will not be heard before the Illinois Supreme Court until late January, Court officials said.

Fischer said the city will continue its appeal in an attempt to establish the legality of its quick-take ordinance.

Gus Bode

Gus says the church preferred to keep its mission for heaven and told the conference center developers to go...elsewhere.

Martial law to end in Poland; partial amnesty to be granted

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The "basic rigors" of martial law will be suspended before the end of the year, internment will end, and there will be a partial amnesty, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski announced Sunday night.

Jaruzelski, the premier, Communist Party chief and head of the martial law council, said in a nationally televised speech that his regime hopes to end military rule "in the reasonably near future."

But he indicated that in the meantime, it would retain some of the extraordinary powers it assumed last year.

Jaruzelski spoke on the eve of the first anniversary of the day he proclaimed martial law to begin the destruction of the independent labor union Solidarity. The union was outlawed on Oct. 13, and last month, the government concluded it was no longer a threat when underground leaders were unable to rally a nationwide protest strike.

Jaruzelski said the 21-man Council of National Redemption "is of the opinion that conditions have arisen for suspending martial law. ... The suspension of martial law means that its basic rigors will cease to function before the end of this year."

The Sejm, Poland's parliament, meets Monday to take the legislative action necessary to put the military council's decision into effect.

Jaruzelski spoke only in general terms of the restric-

Poor turnout for fall election 'typical,' USO president says

By William Jaser, Yong
Staff Writer

The poor voter turnout Wednesday for the senatorial election was typical of a fall election, according to Undergraduate Student Organization President Jerry Cook.

Fall elections are traditionally low because of lack of competition, he said.

Seven hundred voters turned out, less than 5 percent of the student population.

"The posts of president and vice president are not in the race and, therefore, did not attract many voters," Cook said. "The election also was held at a time when many people are more concerned about their books and the finals than they do about student government. And that's rightly so."

Cook said he was disappointed that many seats were unopposed. The actual senate has a bad reputation because some senators "played games."

"If senators show more maturity, it will make the senate more attractive," he said. "The junior politics need to be put down."

The race between Rita Stout and Kris Courtail for the Communications seat surprised him, he said. He had expected Courtail to win the seat. Courtail, a freshman in public relations, lost a thin 145-143 margin to Stout, a junior in journalism. However, he said he knew Stout would be a capable senator.

Unofficial results on election night showed that Stephen Fisherkeller and Ronald Scott won seats, two of 12 candidates for seven West Side seats. But official results showed that Fisherkeller and Scott, who received 79 and 76 votes respectively, lost. Three other losers were Frank Canchola, Jim Rauhandeh and Dennis Ferguson.

Senators-elect for the West Side seats are Deadra Walton, 109 votes; Karen Wolf, 107 votes; Angie Cler, 104; Kathleen O'Sullivan, 96; Naomi Nimrod, 92; Michael Murk, 91; and Leanne Borgstrom, 91.

Fourteen Maverick candidates, most of whom ran unopposed, won seats. Only three Mavericks lost: one for Communications, one for East Side and the other for East Campus.

Cook said that if "we offer the best candidate in the next USO presidential election," the Maverick will win again.

In last spring's election, Cook and 14 Mavericks were elected to office.

Cook said he had several major plans for next semester. They include reviewing the response from John Guyon, vice president for campus services, on the survey on library reduction hours conducted by the USC; spring book co-op; student directory; strategy to respond to tuition increase; the Service Evaluation Task Force, whose findings on the seven student services will be completed by Feb. 17. USO involvement in the local city government election; and a procedure to gain opinions from minority constituents.

"We have been very successful in a number of ways for the past year," Cook said.

Validation of GSC election sought

By Robert Green
Staff Writer

Graduate Student Council President-elect Steve Katsinas has called on the council's Executive Committee to select an impartial judicial board to decide quickly the validity of his 20-19 election victory on Dec. 1.

Katsinas, a doctoral student in higher education, defeated USC Vice President Ann Greeley, a graduate student in psychology.

Three separate appeals were filed by council members last week charging that election by-laws were violated because some who voted were not eligible, written ballots were not provided, and the election commission did not perform its duties properly.

According to GSC election laws, the Executive Committee must select a five-member judicial board, which would decide whether to hold a new election, within five days after the filing of an appeal.

GSC President Paul

Matalonis, committee chairman, said last week that the committee would select the board "no later than Sunday." He couldn't be reached Sunday for comment.

Once selected, the judicial board would have to reach a decision within 15 days, but Matalonis has said that he hoped the decision on whether to hold a new election would be made before Christmas break.

Katsinas said Saturday that he too would like a quick resolution to the matter.

"I would like to see the special judicial body appointed, seated and considering these alleged violations of election law as soon as possible. Until that time, however, I will actively serve as president-elect," he said.

Katsinas declined to comment on the alleged election irregularities except to say that he will respond to the challenges to his election "point by point" before the judicial board.

He said that the election could have been better organized, but he indicated that the election commission and the council itself should accept the blame.

"The GSC election laws place different responsibilities on the shoulders of the president, the vice president, the election commission and council members," he said. "I was just a candidate, and I think I was elected for my ideas."

Katsinas is supposed to assume the office on Jan. 1 along with Vice President-elect Carl Kosierowski.

Survey finds library hours cut affects most undergraduates

By William Jason Yong
Staff Writer

Eighty-five percent of 360 undergraduate students interviewed said they have been affected by the reduction in library hours made this semester, a non-scientific survey conducted by the Undergraduate Student Organization showed.

The survey was conducted Nov. 8 through Nov. 12 at Morris Library.

Lauren Boswell, USO's academic affairs commissioner, said that results of the survey have been submitted to John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs.

Guyon met with USO President Jerry Cook, Fritz Levenhagen, USO vice president, and Boswell last week and told them that he would review the survey results before making any recommendations. Guyon will respond by the first week of spring semester, Boswell said.

At the beginning of the semester, library hours were reduced from 98 hours to 92 hours per week - a one-hour reduction for Mondays through Saturdays. Sunday hours were not changed.

Boswell said that a majority of the students who were inconvenienced by the change in library hours said they were so because of jobs and class schedules. The survey stated that when students get off work at 9 or 10 p.m., it is not worthwhile to go to the library because the circulation desk closes at 10:30 p.m. At 11 p.m. when the library closes Sunday through Thursday, students find it difficult to get up, move somewhere else and try to start studying again, the survey indicated.

The survey showed that seniors use the library most, with juniors coming in second. Freshmen use the library least. The survey noted that many freshmen and sophomores are enrolled in general studies or have not declared a major. Therefore, their classes need little or no research and studying.

The beginning of the week seems to be the time most students study at the library. Students do more research than studying on Thursdays and Fridays, the survey showed.

The survey revealed that 14 percent of the freshmen interviewed indicated they were "severely affected" by the cutback in library hours; 29 percent said they were "negatively affected;" 33 percent said the cut has had a minor effect; and 14 percent said they were not affected at all.

For sophomores, 21 percent said the cut severely affected them; 29 percent indicated a negative effect; 36 percent indicated a minor effect and 14 percent said they were not at all affected.

Eighteen percent of the junior and seniors surveyed said they were severely affected. Thirty-six percent of the juniors and 42 percent of the seniors indicated a negative impact. A fourth of the juniors and 30 percent of the seniors surveyed said the cutback in hours had a minor effect.

A majority of the students said that when the library was closed, they would study at home. Only a small percentage said they would study in Faner Hall or in the Student Center, and an even smaller percentage said they would study in restaurants or friends' homes.

Findings of the survey were based on responses only from undergraduates. Faculty, graduates and other groups were not interviewed.

Boswell said that the survey was not publicized before it was conducted because it might have "influenced more students to be present at the library on the dates the survey was conducted and, consequently, have biased it."

Boswell, a senior in business education, was assisted by three other commission members. They are Michael Zurek, a sophomore in political science; Trina Markley, a sophomore in law enforcement; and Deann Kirk, a junior in geology.

tions that would be lifted and those that would remain.

"Only regulations that directly protect the fundamental interests of the state, creating a protective shield for the economy and ensuring the greater personal safety of citizens, should remain in force wholly or in part as a temporary measure," he said. "The national economy ... needs special protection, and the public wants the fight against crime to be stepped up."

"Anarchy will not be tolerated," he warned. "No one in Poland or abroad should labor under any illusion that the current decisions will allow a further round."

Jaruzelski made no mention of a letter from Solidarity leader Lech Walesa in which the hero of the independent labor movement listed his conditions for cooperation with the government to solve the nation's "deep and prolonged crisis."

Chrysler workers OK contract

TORONTO (AP) — An overwhelming majority of Chrysler's 10,000 striking Canadian workers voted Sunday in favor of a new contract, assuring the end of the 38-day-old strike in Canada against the struggling automaker.

The new contract would give Chrysler workers in the United States and Canada a basic 3 percent wage hike, plus a cost-of-living adjustment of 47 cents per hour for the Americans and 87 cents per hour for the Canadians.

Anywhere from 4 to 10 inches of snow fell overnight from eastern Kentucky to coastal New Jersey.

Winter storm warnings were posted from Virginia to eastern Massachusetts.

Officials plan tougher DWI laws

Blue Cross-Blue Shield fund drops

CHICAGO (AP) — Blue Cross-Blue Shield, Illinois' largest health insurer, is experiencing "disturbing" financial trends that may threaten the company's survival, the head of the state insurance department says.

A company official, however, says the firm is not in serious trouble.

James W. Schacht, acting director of the Insurance Department, said Saturday that his agency was especially concerned about a reduction in company fund used for unforeseen events, which dropped to less than $11 million this year, though it should be $120 million.

Campus streets, lots to be repaved

By Ginny Lee
Staff Writer

SIU-C's campus streets and parking lots will not become victims of the "Chicago pothole syndrome" because of a repair and upgrade plan that the University will implement next year.

The Board of Trustees approved the plan, which will cost about $500,000, at its meeting in Edwardsville Thursday.

Using funds from the sale of parking permits and collection of parking fines, the University will pave one unpaved lot, lay new asphalt on four others, seal the upper-level deck of the parking garage north of McAndrew Stadium and repave sections of Lincoln and Douglas Drives.

Funding for the project was approved by the trustees in accordance with Illinois Board of Higher Education policy for non-instructional capital improvements.

The engineering and design work for the project will be done by physical plant engineers.

The University will resurface Lot 29, northwest of the Wham Building, Lot 22, south of Morris Library, Lot 37, south of the College of Engineering and Technology complex and Lot 89, east of the classroom wing of the Arena.

Lot 39, northwest of the School of Agriculture, will be paved and the upper deck of the parking garage, Lot 12, will be waterproofed.

The parking lot work will cost a total of $194,000.

Sections of Lincoln Drive between U.S. Route 51 and the so-called Physical Plant Drive and between Douglas Drive and the Baptist Student Center will be repaved, along with a loop of Douglas Drive from near the Engineering and Technology quadrangle to the Small Group Housing area.

This portion of the project will cost an estimated $383,000.

The award of $237,000 worth of contracts for the repair of underground electrical cables at SIU-C was approved by the state Capital Development Board, it was announced at the trustees meeting.

The faulty condition of some of these cables has been blamed for a number of temporary power failures in campus buildings in the last several years.

The low bidder for the project was Gualdoni Electric Service Inc. of Murphysboro. In addition to the $237,000 bid, the project budget will include a $20,169 contingency fund and $30,331 for architectural and engineering fees and other costs.

Two more petition for council seats

By Mike Nelson
Staff Writer

Monday is the last day to file nominating petitions for the Carbondale primary election, to be held Feb. 22.

Petitions can be filed between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday in the City Clerk's office, located at City Hall, 609 E. College St. The general city election will be April 12.

At the close of filing Friday, four persons had filed for city offices. Elliot Bevis, 202 S. Poplar St., real estate agent and chairman of the Carbondale Zoning Board of Appeals, filed nomination papers Friday for a 2-year term on the City Council. Also filing for candidacy for a council seat Friday was the Rev. Willie Ivey, 504 E. Larch.

Council member Helen Westberg filed for mayor Dec. 6, the first day petitions could be filed. Also filing Dec. 6 was council member Neil Dillard, who is seeking a 4-year council seat. The mayoral post and three council seats — two 4-year terms and one 2-year term — are up for election.

City Clerk Janet Vaught, noting the low number of petitions filed compared to petitions taken out (over 30), said there will likely be a "mad rush" to file Monday.

Council member Sammie Aikman said Sunday she had not yet decided whether to file for a council seat. Aikman was appointed to the council in June 1981, to finish the 2-year term of Susan Mitchell, who resigned. "Right now I am taking a serious look at the commitment," said Aikman, who also said that family considerations will be a factor in her final decision.

Westberg is vying for the post held by Mayor Hans Fischer, who announced last month he will not seek re-election in order to spend more time with his family. She was appointed to the council in 1973 and was twice re-elected to that position, in 1974 and 1979, and had initially filed for another 4-year council seat.

Students deserve praise for flood control efforts

THIS SEMESTER has seen quite a bit of feuding between the two major groups representing SIU-C students.

The Undergraduate Student Organization and the Graduate Student Council have been able to agree on little, even though both are supposed to be representatives of their constituencies.

It was, therefore, a surprise to see the two groups unite in a common effort last week — a very happy surprise.

USO and GSC worked together to get students motivated to help the flood-ravaged town of Kaskaskia on the Mississippi River.

In a show of altruism, students gamely boarded buses early in the morning and headed towards Kaskaskia to spend most of the day filling and stacking sandbags to stave-off the highest crest-level since 1973 and helped prevent all of the town from going under water.

THIS SACRIFICE came less than one week from finals — a time when many students make or break their grades for the semester. People were still ready and willing to help, even at that time.

The effort paid off for the people of Kaskaskia. The amount of damage to the town was greatly reduced thanks in part to students who cared enough to give their time to help others in need.

To those who helped, applause and praise should be given along with a good luck wish for finals.

To those who organized the project, USO and GSC, applause should be given for overcoming differences in the pursuit of helping others.

Procrastination, unfortunately, has become a college tradition

By Anita Jackson
Student Writer

Another semester is coming to an end and it's time for students to start crying the blues, especially the forever popular college procrastinators. These students are easy to point out at this time of the semester, because in case you haven't noticed, they all possess some of the same basic characteristics.

First of all, they're all the new faces you see huddled together in the library during the last two weeks of school. They wander about the library like lost children with confused looks on their faces, because this is the first time many of them have set foot in the library all semester.

They're also the ones who never know where anything is in the library. A favorite question of theirs is, "Where is the central card catalog?" or "What do these numbers mean?"

Another procrastinator is the one who checks out 20 books at one time from the library. The librarian politely tells him that the books will be due in one month. He then stands there in a daze and says he'll only need the books for a day because his 20 page term paper that he hasn't started on is due the next day.

Procrastinators are also those who walk around campus like zombies for the last few weeks because they are dead tired from all the sleepless nights. They are the ones you see wearing the same clothes they had on the day before. Their excuse is that they didn't have time to take a shower and dress because they were typing the last two pages of their term paper at 9:30 a.m. for their 10 a.m. class.

Let's not forget the procrastinator who thinks he knows everything. He justifies putting off studying by saying, "Oh, I already know that stuff so I'll just glance over the book the day before my exam." Then when he gets a low grade, he says he studied all the wrong things for the test or all the questions were too tricky.

So procrastination has become a college tradition for many students. It seems as if you haven't really lived a true college life unless you pull at least one all-nighter. After all, you can always fool yourself when the semester ends by saying, "I'll never wait until the last minute to do anything else again."

More Cardinals news, please

The Dec. 6 edition of the DE carried an interesting article in the sports section entitled "Bears and McMahon pass Patriots." Now, this item is newsworthy, I admit, because any Bears' victory is a phenomenal achievement.

But this same article brings to mind an exchange of letters and editors' notes from earlier this fall about the DE's lack of coverage of baseball's World Champion St. Louis Cardinals.

At that time, you at the DE insisted that it was not the result of a pro-Chicago bias, but simply that since St. Louis games are primarily played at night, you didn't receive the information in time to print it.

My question is, are Cardinal football games played at night? That is surely the reason for printing the story of the Bears' conquest of the "mighty" Pats instead of printing information about Big Red games.

I would like to close by saying that, for all the Cubs and White Sox fans who pulled against the Birds in the Series, "This Bud's for you!" — David Kimbro, Senior, Mechanical Engineering.

Letters

U.S. in pre-war, not post-war state

I begin this reply to Dana Davidson's letter (DE, Dec. 7) with a trembling hand from the frustration and pain such constipated and short-sighted opinions as her's cause me. Her concluding question, "Does history repeat itself?" is a question that we can reword to "Are we forcing history to repeat itself?"

Today, each of us can make a decision about whether we want to seek a solution to the arms race that could eventually lead to peace, or whether we want to escalate the threat of war by blundering forward toward the unknown consequences of nuclear war.

The Reagan administration has chosen the latter option for all of us and thus history does seem to be repeating; we again find ourselves, as Eugene Rostow, head of the Arms Control Agency, says, in a "pre-war," not "post-war" state.

If, however, we choose to work for a solution to stop the proliferation of nuclear weapons by weighing our options, looking beyond our generation and its interests, stopping the spread of Soviet hate and making an honest effort, we may find that history can move upward and onward rather than moving in circles. I believe history will continue to move in circles until we open our eyes and look at where we have been and where we'd like to end up.

As I refer to Dana's letter, I wade through the familiar dogma of Reagan's well-trained American: the Russians are ahead in the race, they plan to "eventually take over the world," and a nuclear war could be won.

Having unsuccessfully tried to convince such people of the contrary with a rebuttal of statistics, I will not try it here. What I would like Dana and others to think about is the horrendous reality of a nuclear war, excluding motives, advantages of either opponent or winner in the end.

In any nuclear exchange, the damage to the earth, atmosphere, human beings, animals, civilization, the human spirit and international relations would be devastating. I'm sure Dana realizes these consequences. The only way to insure that nuclear weapons are not used is to eliminate them completely from our hands, Russian hands and all hands. The only way this can happen is if we make it happen. Of course, we must do it in a way as to insure our security as a nation; nonetheless, it can and must be done if we have any faith in the human race.

My strongest objection to Dana's logic came when she wrote that "America has decided to protect the world against aggression" and therefore must be ready to put up a good fight. It is unfortunate that the so-called "protector of the world" is involved in aggressive acts itself.

However covert and indirect, the U.S. involvement in Central America, for example, is an aggressive ploy to control the destinies of those countries. I find many similarities between U.S. and Soviet aggression.

Finally, although I agree that "freedom does have a price," I find it disheartening that "freedom" in this country comes at the expense of the millions of Americans who are out of work, who cannot afford to go to college, who are forced to live each day without hope, or are sick and cannot afford to be treated, not because they are stupid or lazy, but because billions of American dollars are being spent on defense. These people are hardly "free."

Nuclear war is not something you watch on television. It destroys everything and anything it reaches, including innocent human beings. Ahh... but at least they're free. Heidi Fillmore-Patrick, Coalition for Change.

Freedom's price may be nuclear war

A recent letter to the DE stated that a nuclear war "is not the end of the world," although the United States might not "come out of a nuclear war unscathed."

In the days since we "scratched" Japan a bit at Hiroshima and Nagasaki, nuclear weapons have become substantially more powerful and more numerous. The United States has the capability to launch from submarines a total of 4,768 nuclear warheads.

Soviet subs carry 1,040 warheads. The U.S. has 1,052 land-based nuclear missile launchers; the Soviets have 2,122 such launchers.

If only 10 percent of the U.S. and Soviet sub-based nukes were used in a war, there would be 580 nuclear explosions. If half of these fell on the U.S., we'd have 290 nuclear explosions in our country. Each explosion would be many times more powerful than those at Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

As the letter pointed out, most of the Soviet nukes are not aimed at population centers but at American nuclear missiles.

Most of the incoming Soviet nuclear weapons would scratch up Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Nevada and Arizona. There might be the inconvenience of radioactive fallout in California and other locations.

Freedom does have a price. Matthew W. Coulter, Carbondale.

It's holiday season for thieves, too

By Jennifer Phillips
Staff Writer

'Tis the holiday season — a time for good food, good fun and, perhaps, lots of stolen property.

Carbondale police are arresting people every day for retail thefts and robberies, according to Police Chief Ed Hogan. Most of the people arrested come to Carbondale from surrounding areas to commit these "crimes of opportunity," he said.

The increased number of shoppers during the holidays makes shoplifting and purse snatching easier but Hogan said amateurs mainly commit these crimes at this time.

Professional shoplifters don't operate during this period, he said, because they can't recognize undercover security personnel in the stores.

Although there have been some thefts at the University Mall, they don't happen exclusively in a mall-type atmosphere, he said. Thefts can happen in any store.

Packages stolen from cars, considered auto theft, are also common during this season.

Because of Carbondale's large transient student population, house burglaries are also a problem during the holidays.

Hogan said residents can still have their houses watched by the police department while away during break or on vacation and should go to the police station to fill out the necessary forms.

"We are more than willing to provide this service," he said.

The department will conduct about 250 house watches this year, he said, and about two-thirds of those will be for students.

Hogan offered some suggestions for holiday shoppers and travelers.

First of all, he said, people should never carry large sums of money. If people do carry money, credit and identification cards in their billfolds, they shouldn't put them in their back pockets when shopping.

Women carrying purses should carry the kind with shoulder straps, he said, and place the opening side with the flap closed toward their bodies. Also, shoppers shouldn't leave packages in their cars while shopping.

When traveling, people shouldn't advertise that their house will be empty by telling a lot of people that they will be away, Hogan said.

He said that if student tenants feels their premises are less than secure, they should complain to their landlords.

Program to get new director

Arthur J. Cox has been named director of the Division of Social and Community Services in the College of Human Resources. The Board of Trustees ratified Cox's appointment Thursday.

Cox, 39, of East Tennessee State University, has served as chairman and associate professor in East Tennessee State University Department of Social Work since 1978. He will replace Seymour Bryson, associate dean of the College of Human Resources, who has headed the division on a temporary basis since last June.

Cox has also served as an assistant professor in the School of Social Work at Florida State University. He is a two-degree graduate of Howard University in Washington, D.C., and earned a doctor of social welfare degree from Columbia University.

He is founder and national steering committee member of the National Association of Black Social Workers. He was named Tennessee's Social Worker of the year in 1980.

Cox has written three books and several articles on social work practices and social welfare.

The King and Queen, sitting center, oversee the festivities of the Madrigal Dinner Concert.

Elegance and tradition abound

Madrigals revive the 1500s

By Jeanna Hunter
Staff Writer

The soft, melodic tunes emanating from the recorders and then the trumpets slicing into the relaxed atmosphere called the guests from the Gallery Lounge into the dining room, Ballrooms A, B and C. The Madrigals entered for the traditional Madrigal Dinner Concert Thursday night.

To step inside the door was to step back in time. Elegantly set tables stood ready to receive their guests. Christmas trees, reaching nearly to the ceiling, twinkled brightly. The head table, slightly raised above the rest, dominated the front of the room.

The King, Dennis Anderson, and his Queen, Sara Anderson surveyed their loyal subjects. The food was blessed and the audience joined the royal court in singing the Doxology.

The Third Fanfare began the feast by announcing the serving of the Wassail, a traditional Christmas drink. With appropriate pomp and circumstance, the Wassail was carried out for the King's approval and then served to the waiting guests. A toast followed.

And so the evening progressed. The food was first displayed for the King's approval and then served to the guests.

The Madrigals, adorned in elaborate 16th century costumes, entertained throughout the evening with songs and other antics that night, as they did the three other nights of performances.

During the meal, the jugglers, Dana Nelson and Andy Ritter, and magician Mark Jenkins entertained on center stage.

Their performances, while cute, lacked true or even feigned enthusiasm and also lacked the communication with the audience needed to make them really effective.

Dancers also performed on center stage during the meal. The choreography by Sallie

These hard times fuel paper's message

By Juliana Anastasoff
Staff Writer

What do the farmers, miners, students and other working people of Southern Illinois have in common? Hard times and struggles against forces that keep them from living the way they believe human beings should live — in a sharing, harmonious community with their families and neighbors.

It is from this belief that a small group of parents, students and other community members come together every month, volunteering their time and talent "to share a common goal and vision" that is the Hard Times, a monthly, community-based newspaper with a progressive approach to issues of Southern Illinois, according to Chandra Boyd, a Hard Times staff writer.

"Our commitment is to organize all working and oppressed people and be their voice, to uncover truth and promote justice," said Boyd, who emceed a benefit for the paper Thursday night at the Wesley Foundation.

The purpose of the benefit was to bring people together to talk about some of the critical issues facing the people of Southern Illinois and to raise money for the paper's next issue, explained editor Matthew Meighan.

Music from staff members and the Southern Weavers was woven around presentations by various community groups such as the Leonard Peltier Support Group, the Shawnee Solar Project, the Equal Rights Council, the National Farm Organization and by Meighan himself.

"The problems we face are not our problems, they are not our fault," Meighan stressed, saying that people feel their economic and consequential societal "failures" are due to personal inadequacies. Rather than assuming a posture of negative self-criticism, Meighan said a positive stance of strength and unity as a community is the primary step to problem-solving.

"We must first overcome the barriers, conflicts and misunderstandings set up between us so we can begin communicating," said Meighan, stressing the need for people to realize their commonality — similar goals and aspirations as human beings. Meighan said he strongly believes in "the power of the people" to overcome their biggest barrier: the corporations that oppress workers, push prices beyond the sky and drive small merchants and farmers to economic ruin.

"Those who have made the situation this way aren't going to be too keen on seeing things change," said Meighan. "But I believe there is no force on this earth that can stop the power of the people in Southern Illinois in overcoming the hard times we are facing. And our most effective tool is communication."

Idoine was simple but effective. Too bad the dancers didn't appear to have practiced it more before the show. There were no glaring mistakes, but it seemed that a few of the dancers were at most guessing about what they were supposed to be doing.

The jesters, Melissa Jacobs and Rich Kryczka, were awful. They read their lines from note cards as though they were two strangers yanked in off the street, thrown into costume and made to act silly, all for under a buck. There was no excuse for the lines not being memorized. Their antics and silliness boomeranged and by the end of the show, the audience was laughing out of sheer politeness at their rather poor attempts at being funny.

The program was saved from being just another amateur-night-out by the king, the singers, the musicians and the food prepared by SIUC Catering and Food Service, which was a tribute to their sometimes-obscured talent for cooking.

The musicians and the singers were the high point of the evening's entertainment. Their clear, sweet voices caressed the ears of those present as they sang some old and traditional Christmas songs. Two songs, "Hushing Carol" and "Jingle Bells," were octaves above the rest.

The "Hushing Carol" was paraphrased from the Kountz arrangement by music faculty member Robert Kingsbury for this intriguing performance which moved the listener through several stages of excitement.

The rendition of "Jingle Bells" clearly moved the audience to near-cheers as everyone recognized the familiar tune. It was like meeting an old friend in the middle of a group of pleasant strangers. The variation on its traditional composition made it especially entertaining.

The king provided almost as much entertainment as did the singers. His facial expressions and royal gestures made the audience wonder whether this was actual royalty with whom they were dining. One would have been hard-pressed to cast a better person in the role as king.

Job market tighter in '83, survey by Northwestern finds

EVANSTON (AP) — Not only will fewer job opportunities await 1983 university graduates, but a number of 1982 grads have lost their jobs already, according to a Northwestern University survey.

The 1982 Endicott Report, a national survey of job prospects for graduating students, asked 251 large and medium-sized firms whether they had been forced to let go any 1982 graduates and 11 percent replied "Yes."

The survey, completed Nov. 29 and released Thursday, also found that hiring of bachelor's degree grads will fall 11 percent in 1983 and that 21 percent of the companies said they would either cut the new recruits' salaries or not increase them. But overall, the majority of firms said average salaries at the bachelor's level will go up 2.7 percent to 7.7 percent.

The largest cutback in employment — 18 percent — will be in employment of engineers with bachelor's degrees, the first such decline in "about two decades," said Northwestern Dean Victor R. Lindquist, the university's placement director and author of the report.

Employment prospects will continue rising for computer specialists, up 3.2 percent, and for engineers with master's degrees, up 6 percent, the survey found.

But, the report determined, many firms fared worse financially this year than in 1981 and most don't expect any improvement in U.S. economic conditions until the second or third quarter of 1983.

The firms reported that federal cuts in aid to students would have little effect on corporate hiring of qualified graduates, but might discourage minority recruiting in the future.

Fifteen percent of the companies surveyed said they felt that future recruitment of minority students might be restricted by the students' financial inability to attend school.

The surveyed companies said half of the layoffs of recent graduates were in engineering, which suggests a continued market decline next year for graduates in this discipline. Other recent grads were laid off in the categories of business, computer science, accounting and chemistry.

"If a termination occurs with the newly hired college graduate, 88 percent of the corporations will provide severance pay," said Lindquist. "Seventy-five percent will provide outplacement assistance, and 61 percent will continue medical benefits."

Of the companies responding to the survey, 54 percent said they would hire fewer bachelor's degree graduates and 34 percent would employ fewer master's graduates. The report predicted that total job offers in the survey group would decline from 33,269 this year to 30,183 in 1983.

"Firms that are cutting back state they will reduce their recruiting activities on college and university campuses, with fewer schedules and fewer campus visits," said Lindquist.

Still, the study concluded, average starting salaries will rise next year — to $2,150 monthly for engineers, $1,623 for accountants, $1,547 for business administration graduates, $1,934 for computer specialists and $1,522 for liberal arts graduates.

Just under half of the firms — 48 percent — expected business to remain stagnant next year, citing factors such as interest rates and structural problems in certain industries. Forty-three percent of the firms predicted improvement, while 9 percent forecast a continuing business slump.

The companies surveyed represented a cross-section of business and industry, including heavy machinery, utilities, banking, construction, retail-mail order, chemicals, steel, oil-gas, automotive, food processing, publishing and transportation.

Burris tells secrets of his success

By Andrew Herrmann
Staff Writer

When Illinois Comptroller Roland Burris spoke at the Project Upward Bound Participants Award Banquet at the Student Center Saturday, he talked about success.

And for Burris, success is a familiar topic.

A graduate of SIU-C, a lawyer, one of the 100 most influential black Americans according to Ebony magazine for four straight years, a former vice president of the state's largest bank, former national director of PUSH and a winner of the office of comptroller by more than a million votes over his opponent - Burris is certainly a successful man.

But success is open to everyone, he told about 100 students, parents and University administrators at the banquet. It's just a matter of following what he calls "the three P's."

Preparation, patience and perseverance are what is needed to "be a winner," he said. Preparation through education, patience when obstacles appear between a person and his goals, and perseverance by "holding on until you achieve those goals."

"I'm no better than you are," the Centralia native said. "I was born and raised right up the street, just like all of you. I came here to SIU and ate jelly and butter sandwiches because my mother was poor and didn't have the money to send me to school. But I made it and so can you."

He said that when he was 16 years old he set his goals and didn't stop trying until he achieved them. He said he wanted to become a lawyer and a politician, and that it took him 25 years "of struggle and turbulence" to accomplish those ambitions.

"When I was your age, I said I wanted to do something with myself. If you set your goals you can do something with yourself," he told the group.

He warned the students that they should not rely on luck to get ahead and when they finally are a success, they should "take every opportunity to help somebody else."

"In addition to your own goals, you must desire not only to take from this life but to love and give generously. Not only should you dream dreams but dream better dreams. You should not only enjoy this land and its wealth. You should make this a better place to live for everyone. Don't only strive to be good, but strive to be good for something.

The students, part of the SIU-C Upward Bound program which serves six high schools in Southern Illinois, were recognized for their work, which included taking weekly tutorial services and monthly academic workshops.

"Don't be a drop-out," Burris said "but be tuned in. I believe in my heart you can do it."

Auburn deals loss to women swimmers

By Brian Higgins
Staff Writer

Coach Tim Hill's women swimmers have reached the mid-way point of their first NCAA season unscathed. Outside the state of Alabama, that is.

But as soon as the Salukis journey into the Magnolia State, problems begin to arise. SIU-C has suffered two losses thus far, and both of them have occurred within the Alabama borders. The latest setback occurred Friday when they were dumped by Auburn, 82-67.

"The biggest problem was that we weren't ready," Hill said, reeling off a list of complications in the Salukis' travel itinerary. "Auburn swam their best meet of the year. We got better as the meet progressed, but it was too late."

The Saluki high point came when the 200-meter medley relay team of Pam Ratcliffe, Amanda Martin, Barb Larsen and Laura Peet qualified for the NCAA nationals by clocking in at 1:48:41. Janie Coontz was the meet's only double winner, winning the 500 freestyle in 4:59:50 and claiming the 400 individual medley title in 4:39:20.

On the boards, the area that Hill thought could make-or-break the Salukis in the meet, the divers held up their end, by clinching both events. In the absence of their top diver, Sandra Bollinger (sprained ankle), two freshmen came through for Coach Dennis Golden for the second week in a row. Angie Faidherbe grabbed the 1-meter title with 235.3

points, while Cindy Mullin took the 3-meter event with a 234.1 point total.

Other Saluki winners included Amanda Martin in the 200 breaststroke, and the 400 free relay team of Larsen, Ratcliffe, Rene Royalty and Stacy Westfall.

"The girls didn't give up," Hill said, whose squad suffered its only other loss at Alabama three weeks ago. "They gave good performances, but I didn't think they were as fired up as Auburn. We swam all right, but we should've swam better."

The Salukis have a four-week break before the next meet at UCLA, which will kick off a California tour pitting them against the top teams in the nation.

Cardinals beaten by Redskins

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Mark Moseley, given a reprieve by a penalty on his first try, booted field goals of 32, 30, 20 and 24 yards to pace Washington to a 12-7 win Sunday over the St. Louis Cardinals in National Football League action.

Moseley's boots, set up by Joe Theismann's passing, brought the 34-year-old kicker within two of the NFL's record. He now has a string of 18 in a row, two fewer than Garo Yepremian kicked for the Miami Dolphins and New Orleans Saints.

Moseley, splitting the uprights once in each quarter, sent Washington to a 12-0 lead before Jim Hart ignited a mistake-prone St. Louis offense.

The 38-year-old Cards quarterback came off the bench in the closing 10 minutes and marched the Cards 63 yards to the game's only touchdown. The score came on a 5-yard scoring strike to Greg LaFleur with 3:08 remaining.

Prior to the belated St. Louis drive, the Redskins capitalized on Cards' errors almost too numerous to count.

D.D. Plab had 10 points off the bench as all but two Salukis scored.

"All the players have been contributing, and that's significant, especially since we have only 11 players right now."

Scott said the Salukis are playing relaxed and more confident and consistent than they were in the early going.

"We still have to go out and play a consistent 40 minutes," she said. "Sometimes we play great, but other times we play pretty poor. We have a lot of improving to do, but we're going in the right direction."

SIU-C last year and averaged 11.4 points a game.

Byrd is one of the few genuine scoring threats on the team. But he said he doesn't go out of his way to put the ball up.

"I'm just open," he said. "If I'm open I'll try it."

Durnall Jones added 14 points by hitting all eight of his free throws. Copeland had 10, and handled the ball during the Salukis delay. SIU-C went into a freeze with five minutes left.

The resultant free throws helped ice the game. SIU-C went to the line 48 times and made 35 free throws. The Panthers committed 33 fouls and had four players foul out.

One of them was mammoth center Kevin Duckworth. Duckworth, 6-11 and 280 pounds, looked like he might cause some damage inside, but he could only play nine minutes before fouling out. The Panthers' other center, Paul Neidig, lasted 22 minutes before fouling out.

Tim Dykstra led Eastern Illinois with 18 points.

Salukis survive long-range EIU attack

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

Saluki basketball coach Allen Van Winkle wasn't sure about the three point play rule, but he went along with it anyway. After Saturday, Van Winkle would be willing to scrap the entire experiment.

SIU-C beat Eastern Illinois 79-74 to even its record at 3-3, but had to survive a barrage of Panther three point field goals to do so.

To Van Winkle's way of thinking those three point shots turned a deserved Saluki rout into something unfairly close.

The Salukis led by 17 with less than nine minutes left, and had all but shut down the Panther's normal offense. The Saluki coach was probably preparing to clear his bench.

But then Eastern hit four long jumpers from outside the 19-9 three point line, to make the score 72-65 with three minutes left. They never got closer than five after that, though. The Salukis came out and played man to man, and denied the long jump shot. Free throws, and sharp ballhandling by James Copeland helped clinch the win.

"It makes for sloppy play," said Van Winkle of the new rule. "It's a very different basketball game. Not only did 17 go to nine in a hurry, when it went back to 12 it went to five in a hurry. You're going to have to play nine point games like you played three or four point games last year."

Eastern made six of 15 three point shots, five in the second half, and four during the rally that turned the runaway into a game again.

SIU-C had moved out to its 17 point lead by shooting 62 percent in the second half. The Salukis had a 31-29 lead at halftime.

The Eastern attack in the first half was the opposite of its second half strategy. The Panthers moved the ball patiently and worked inside to their forwards. When they fell behind later they gave that up.

The Saluki offense in the first half was Ken Byrd. He had 15 points in the first 20 minutes and finished with 27. It was the fourth time in six games that he has scored more than 20 points in a game.

"Last year I wasn't as comfortable as I was today," said Byrd, who transferred to See SURVIVE, Page 15

Harper selected to play in all-star games

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

John Harper will play two more college games before entering a pro football training camp next summer.

Harper, rated a genuine pro prospect by SIU-C football coach Rey Dempsey, has been selected to play in two college football all-star games.

He will play in the Blue-Gray game in Montgomery, Ala., on Christmas day, and also the Senior Bowl Jan. 22 in Mobile, Ala.

At those games and in the practices before them, Harper will get a chance to show his wares to pro scouts, and also to prove that his ankle is fine. An ankle injury slowed him in about half the Saluki games this year.

Despite the bad ankle, Harper was still named as the Missouri Valley Conference defensive player of the year. He had 110 tackles, and added seven quarterback sacks and two fumble recoveries.

Dempsey expects Harper to go in the first three rounds of the National Football League draft. Harper, 6-3 and 234 pounds, played defensive end during much of his college career, except for a few games this year, but would probably be a linebacker in the pros.

The announcement that he would play in the two college all-star games was made during halftime of the Salukis 79-74 win over Eastern Illinois Saturday. Harper made a brief speech at halfcourt. He thanked the fans who supported the team, but mostly he thanked Lord.

"He's my inspiration," said Harper.

Somebody asked him what he thought of when he looked back on his career.

Harper smiled. "Success," he said.

Saluki women rout ICC to even record

By Jackie Rodgers
Sports Editor

Now that the SIU-C women's basketball team has evened its record at 3-3, Coach Cindy Scott said her team is ready to make a fresh start.

"We started our schedule with too many tough games too soon," Scott said. "We really needed to play a team like Murray State after our first two games."

The Salukis scored their highest point total of the season in pounding Illinois Central College 84-69 in Peoria Saturday. It was the second game in which Scott was able to empty her bench after the starting five broke the game open.

For the second game in a row, forward Char Warring led the Saluki scorers with 19 points. Connie Price had 17 points and ripped down a game-high 16 rebounds.

"They just didn't have anyone to stop them," said Scott. The tallest Cougar stood 5-10. Warring is 6-2 and Price is 6-3.

Guard Rose Peebles had a chance to perform for the hometown folks and added 16 points. Peebles attended and played for ICC her first two years.

"She was pretty nervous and tight the first half," Scott said. "but she just did great the second half."

Scott gave praise to the junior college team, saying that they played well.

"They are a good, scrappy little team," she said. "If they had a big girl, they would give anyone a good fight. Their point guard is really tough."

That guard is Linda Martin, who led ICC with 20 points.

Scott said the Salukis broke out to a 20 point lead in the first half, but the Cougars cut it to 11, 41-30, at the end of the half when Scott went to her bench. ICC never got closer than that the rest of the game.

The Salukis converted 38 of 65 field goal attempts and made 10 of 16 free throw attempts. It was the second game in the row they hit better than 50 percent from the line.

"The games we don't need the free throws in, we make them," said Scott. Poor free throw shooting plagued the Salukis in their three losses.

"We're not harping on them about making them," Scott said. "We're just letting them relax and play, and it seems to be helping."

Scott said the contributions from the bench are encouraging, especially in light of the fact that the Salukis are down to 11 healthy players with Cheri Bacon and Linda Wilson still nursing injuries and Susan Wright's quitting the team.
